ContractWorks Contract Management Software Launches New Features to Enhance the Reporting Process

ContractWorks Contract Management Software announces additional custom features that are designed specifically to improve efficiency during reporting, and enhance contract management procedures by saving time through customized simplicity.

Santa Barbara, California (PRWEB) June 09, 2016 -- ContractWorks, the most user-friendly, secure, and affordable contract management software releases powerful feature enhancements designed specifically to remove complication from the reporting process through customization and automation. These latest additions are enabling contract managers, human resources professionals, and corporate legal teams to streamline their document management processes by offering an affordable solution with a clean and simple user interface and a robust post-signature feature set that saves users endless hours of unnecessary work.

The new "scheduled reports" feature gives users the ability to streamline the reporting process. By allowing for the creation of customizable reporting parameters, complete with pre-scheduled notifications sent via email, users can simply outline how frequently they need specific information, and ContractWorks will do the work for them based on their unique reporting schedule.

Another feature setting ContractWorks apart from others in the industry is its unique and completely customizable contract tags, allowing users to customize their documents with a 'tag' of any parameter they choose. Custom tags give users flexibility in reporting on data that is important to them, and with this latest enhancement, users can now create tags with multiple values. By empowering users to assign multiple attributes to one tag and create the corresponding reports, ContractWorks makes it easy for users to capture a variety of detailed information at once, instead of wasting time running multiple reports to achieve the same goal.

ContractWorks' new feature enhancements are yet another reason why businesses are choosing to use the software everyday. It has become apparent that the simple approach to contract management is not only welcomed but necessary as an industry standard, and it is clear that too many solutions are designed to be overly complex and are chalk-full of unnecessary and unusable features. ContractWorks has once again proven that what contract mangers need is clean software with an intuitive user interface, plus a streamlined and valuable feature set-something that the software company continues to impress with.
